Gendering social work in Russia: towards anti-discriminatory practices

Author(s): Elena Iarskaia-Smirnova (Department of Social Anthropology and Social Work, Centre for Social Policy and Gender Studies, Saratov State Technical University, Saratov, Russia)
Pavel Romanov (Department of Social Anthropology and Social Work, Centre for Social Policy and Gender Studies, Saratov State Technical University, Saratov, Russia)

Abstract: Purpose
– This article seeks to uncover the gendered nature of discourses in social services and social work textbooks and their impact on the professional identity of social workers in Russia.

Design/methodology/approach
– It is based on qualitative methodology, referring to interview material, and discourse analysis of the Russian textbooks used in social care education. It addresses three dimensions of gender: labour market policies and women's work/low wages; identity constructions of the
